RRIEFS, PAMPHLE18, ETC.

In an interview at Washington City last week, Senator John Sherman, in answer to the question, "What would be the effect of free coinage of silver?" replied that "the free coinage of silver will reduce the purchasing power of money one-half and demonetize gold. Labor and production will not be advanced in price in proportion to the reduction in the value of money, and the only result will be that creditors will be cheated out of one-half of the debt due them."

Those who favor the unlimited coinage of silver agree with the Senator that restoring the white metal to its constitutional rights, same as are now accorded to gold, would reduce the purchasing power of the dollar-that is, the gold dollar would cease to be a 200-cent dollar, and would come down to its normal and honest value of 100 cents to the dollar, as it was under the constitutional coinage of both metals on equal terms.

The statement of the Senator that restoring silver to its rights as a money metal, on equal terms with gold, will "demonetize gold," is silly in the extreme. The absurdity of such reasonng may be illustrated as follows: Smith and Brown are cousins, both honorable men, enjoying equal privileges as free American citizens. Smith is falsly accused, and on the verdict of suborned or mislead jurymen sent to prison. Later, it is shown that Smith is suffering false imprisonment, and his friends and those who favor justic e importune the governer to undo the wrong and restore Smith's constitutional right to liberty, same as Brown is enjoying. But the governer and some enemies of justice and fair play put up the silly plea that restoring Smith's constitutional rights would have the effect of putting Brown in Such argument would be on a par with Senator Sherman's statement that restoring silver to its place as a constitutional money metal would demenetize gold. It would not deprive gold of its legal tender quality nor deny it free access to the mints same as it has now. It would still be, with silver, a money of final redemption, and nobody knows this better than the venerable Senator from Ohio.

Mr. Sherman's claim that the only result of free coinage of silver would be to "cheat creditors out of one-half the debt due them," is only another way of saying that creditors would be prevented from collecting, by robber legislation, double the amount of debt due them .- St. Louis Journal of Agri-
